

LEED Green Associate Exam Practice Questions: LEED Practice Tests

Question 60 of 128 Show Answer Legend

Which of the following is NOT an example of passive design?

A Capturing sunlight for natural lighting (daylighting)

In passive design free solar energy is captured and applied efficiently instead of relying predominantly on active systems.

Daylighting is the practice of placing windows or other transparent media and reflective surfaces so that during the day natural light provides effective internal illumination.

B Using wind for natural ventilation

Windows that open to allow air movement is an example of passive design.

C Orienting a building for optimal sun exposure

The building orientation impacts the heating and cooling of a building depending on the climate and the orientation.

D Using natural refrigerants

Do not confuse passive (natural) ventilation/design with natural refrigerants. Natural refrigerants still require mechanical means to distribute and cool air.
